Welcome to the Cordaid Community

Cordaid is one of the largest international development organisations in the Netherlands. We focus on reducing poverty by changing unequal power relations. We believe in social and economic justice for all. To achieve this we invest in civil society organisations that are working on a sustainable future of their community in a result-oriented way. In many of our programmes, the relationship with the local government and business community is an important factor.

Cordaid is active in Africa, Asia and Latin America, and focuses on the following areas:

- Conflict-transformation
- Health and well-being
- Entrepreneurship
- Humanitarian Aid en Disaster Risk Reduction
- Urban Development

We connect, inspire and finance people on their road to economic and social independence. That includes the Netherlands. In doing so, we do not avoid difficult situations, such as war or the battle for natural resources such as oil and coal. Nor do we avoid dialogue in cases of differing (religious) viewpoints or the suppression of women and minorities.

People living in all communities have the courage to stand up for their rights and want to invest in reducing poverty. We support these people and their organisations, because we believe that fundamental social changes happen through society. From the grass roots. To Cordaid, cooperation with a strong civil society is crucial to help build a sustainable community without poverty or injustice.
